

Dubuque COMMUNITY SCHOOLS

Course Syllabus: Yearbook

Course Description

Students in this course will publish a yearbook that reflects the school community, acts as a public relations tool for the school district, and serves as an education vehicle for students. Students are responsible for planning, organizing, designing and publishing the school yearbook. Students are also responsible for journalistic writing, editing, and photography. Desktop publishing and photo editing programs will be used to produce a professional looking publication. Students are also expected to approach the business community for advertising opportunities.

Students must apply for staff positions including completing an application, teacher recommendation, and portfolio. Students and parents must agree to a staff contract.

Because interviews must be conducted and photos taken outside of class time, yearbook staff members must be willing to devote time after school to these responsibilities.
